LOUISVILLE. Habitat ReStore is Louisville's resource for new and used building materials, furniture, tools, and appliances. ReStore diverts donated, usable materials from the landfill and sells them to the public in order to create a sustainable income for Habitat for Humanity of Metro Louisville. If you are planning to remodel your home or office, call us to find out how we can help you divert your usable materials from the landfill and keep them in use. Our DeConstruction service can even help with your demolition needs. Call 502.636.2419 for more information or to make a tax-deductible donation.

LEXINGTON. Henkel Denmark, founded in 1999, is a hard-hitting landscape custom design-build-management team, staffed with seasoned professionals, including owners Bill Henkel, ASLA, and Gordon Denmark. Henkel Denmark has gained a reputation for exceptional customer service with meticulous attention to details. Their list of services cover every landscape possibility, including eco-friendly landscaping, and they have developed a loyal following of highly talented craftsmen including dry stone and brick masons, carpenters, electricians, plumbers, civil engineers, architects, swimming pool contractors, pond contractors and sod contractors. If you dream it, they can build it. They have won numerous local and national awards. 859.455.9577 or www.HenkelDenmark.com

LEXINGTON. Intints Window Tinting is the premier source for high-quality window film products for both residential and commercial applications in Kentucky. Windows are an integral part of every home and building, creating a wonderful sense of space and light. However, windows create challenges for increasing energy demands, solar hot spots and the transmission of damaging ultraviolet (UV) rays. With over 35 years of combined experience and more than one million square feet of window film installed, Intints, a member of the Better Business Bureau of Central Kentucky, can offer an effective and attractive solution to any size project. No cost solar consultations available. 198 Moore Dr. 859.278.8789 www.intints.com

FRANKFORT. The Kentucky Solar Partnership works to advance the use of solar energy, energy efficiency, conservation, and other renewable energy resources. Our work includes education, advocacy, research, consulting, and demonstration projects. In 2006 we released the second edition of The Kentucky Solar Energy Guide, an introduction to solar electric and solar thermal systems for Kentucky (available for $13.95 at www.kysolar.org). KSP, a project of the non-profit Appalachia — Science in the Public Interest, is home to the Kentucky Solar Energy Society.
